When the grand stand began to fill up yesterday afternoon the spectators found six of the original ten starters were still in the race. The Fiat, driven by Ralph De Palma and E. H. Parker, had been the first car to be put out of the race. It was withdrawn after the spectacular collision with the Allen-Kingston on the lower turn at 1115 o'clock Friday night. The Stearns, driven by Laurent Grosso and Ralph Mulford, had been wrecked at 11:23 o'clock Friday night, when Mechanic Leonard Cole had been killed and Grosso seriously injured. The Fiat had made sixty-three miles and the Stearns sixty-nine miles. The new Houpt car, driven by George Robertson and Al Poole, winners of the twenty-four hour race at Brighton last month with the Simplex, had not appeared on the track after the ninth hour. The Houpt's best hour was the second, when it covered fifty miles. It made only thirteen miles during the ninth hour and had covered 168 miles when it was declared out of the race. The connecting rod bearing had burned out and could not be fixed sothat Robertson and Poole could get into the race again.

The Lozier, driven by William Heina and Harry Cobe, was the fourth car to be withdrawn from the race. With Heina at the wheel the Lozier had been travelling steadily in the early part of the race, finishing the second hour in second place, only one mile bohind the Rainier, which was leading with 100 miles to its credit, the Lozier covered fifty-three miles during the second hour. But made only twenty-four miles in the inird hour. The misfortunes began at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, when the car turned over on the turn into the homestretch. The tire on the left front wheel had burst and the sudden swerve that resulted broke the steering gear. Heina, who was driving, was not injured when the carturned over, and Mechanic Turcotte also escaped. The car was taken to the Lozier camp and went back on the track, after having been fixed up, in 3 hours 10 minutes. Harry Cobe drove it for four hours, covering fifty miles in the eighth hour.

Heina took the wheel after Cobe had finished his trick of four hours. After Heina had been driving for about an hour and just after 9 o'clock yesterday morning the tire on the Lozier right rear wheel blew Up as the car was rounding the turn into the backstretch. The car swerved around in the opposite direction it had been going and then turned over after it had gone into the drainage ditch. Heina and his mechanic Turcotte, fell under the car.' Heina was only badly shaken up and Turcotte escaped with some bruises on his right shoulder. The car was too badly damaged to the drainer, which led from the second

James Butler participated in the sport yesterday for the first time since the trotters have had possession of the track. He had entries in several classes and drove the winners in the 2:20 pscing and the 2:25 trotting classes. Flying Feet carried off the honors in the trotting race, winning in straight heats and defeating Hugh Riley's Lucy and Philip Heipershausers's chestnut mare Lemon Girl. In the pacing class Directum Monarch won, beating Dr. J. H. Ferster's Lillie Wilkes and distancing in the first heat Andrew Cone's bay mare Jewell.

Christopher Hackett's good old Princess Pique carried off the honors of the day by defeating in straight heats in the 2:12 trotting class De Witt C. Flanagan's bay mare Kinstress, 2:09%. The fastest time was 2:16 made in the second heat.
